C/25/00364	15/05/2025	Tom Sharp	It was alleged that on 9 April 2025, during a Council Strategy Workshop, the Councillor made inappropriate comments in relation to a compliance matter listed on the agenda. Specifically, it was alleged the Councillor stated that compliance officers are "not trained, uneducated and slightly arrogant."	Inappropriate conduct	22/05/2025	Dismissed under section 150D(3)(c) of the Local Government Act 2009 - Dealing with the complaint, notice or information would be an unjustifiable use of resources	The OIA is focused on serious misconduct matters and rarely refers complaints of this nature back to councils for further consideration. It is acknowledged that strategy workshops are forums for robust discussion. However, councillors are encouraged to reflect on the language used in such settings to reduce the likelihood of future complaints.
C/25/00618	02/09/2025	Amanda Hay	On 2 September 2025, Councillor Hay self-referred a matter to the Office of the Independent Assessor (OIA). The referral was made following a resident's social media post which suggested she had engaged in misconduct in relation to the awarding of $14,500 in Council funding to a community organisation of which she was a patron. The post implied that the Councillor had benefited or acted improperly in connection with the funding decision	Suspected misconduct or conduct breach	11/09/2025	Dismissed under section 150SD(2)(c)(iii) of the Local Government Act 2009 – conduct does not constitute a conduct breach or misconduct.	The OIA determined that the conduct did not raise a reasonable suspicion of misconduct or a conduct breach under the Act. In reaching its decision, the OIA considered the Councillor's self-referral, the resident's social media post, relevant provisions of the Local Government Act 2009, and the Human Rights Act 2019. It was noted that the Councillor had declared a conflict of interest at the Council meeting where the funding matter was considered and had removed herself from the decision-making process. On this basis, the OIA concluded there was no evidence that the Councillor's conduct constituted a breach.
C/25/00717	10/10/2025	Amanda Hay	On 10 October 2025, Councillor Hay self-referred a matter to the Office of the Independent Assessor (OIA). The self-referral related to an allegation made by a resident on social media that Councillor Hay had engaged in "stalking on a private Facebook page." The page was administered by the resident	Suspected misconduct or conduct breach	27/10/2025	Dismissed under section 150SD(2)(c)(iii) of the Local Government Act 2009 – conduct does not constitute a conduct breach or misconduct.	The OIA determined that the conduct did not raise a reasonable suspicion of misconduct or a conduct breach under the Act. In reaching its decision, the OIA considered Councillor Hay's self-referral, the relevant provisions of the Local Government Act 2009 (Qld) , and the Human Rights Act 2019 (Qld) . It was noted that the allegation was a bare claim made by a member of the public on social media and that there was no evidence known to or available to the OIA to corroborate any element of the alleged conduct. The OIA concluded that Councillor Hay's conduct clearly did not constitute a conduct breach or misconduct.
